Commentary

While equity holdings in the UK, Europe, Japan and emerging markets all declined in value during the review period, in terms of relative performance, they beat their comparative benchmarks, thanks to good stock selection. In particular, the emphasis of the UK Equity Dividend fund on higher income-paying stocks in 'defensive' industries, such as healthcare and food production, added value.

Conversely, equity positions in North America and Pacific markets lagged, with exposure to the financial sector weighing on the North America fund. In terms of tactical asset allocation, a short position in UK and overseas sovereign bonds cost some performance.

Towards the end of July, the fund manager trimmed the fund's long equity positions and held the proceeds in cash so as to protect the portfolio from increasing volatility. After the end of the quarter, he took advantage of the dramatic fall in global stockmarkets to increase exposure to equities.

The fund manager maintains a short position in UK and overseas sovereign debt, as he believes that there is little value in the asset class.

Finally, the fund manager maintains his targeted overweight position in commercial property, using it as a diversifier for a balanced portfolio.

Other companies may use different descriptions and as such these risk ratings should not be considered as generic across the fund management industry.
- › We regularly review our fund risk ratings, so they may change in the future. If, in our view, there is a material change in the fund's level of risk, for example due to a significant change to the assets held by the fund or in the way the fund is managed, we will provide information on the new risk rating. We recommend that you make sure you understand the risk rating of any fund before you invest. You will find this information at www.pru.co.uk/factsheets
- › You should also consider discussing your decision and the appropriateness of a fund's risk rating with an adviser.
