Commentary

Gilt yields fell sharply during the quarter as investors' fears over the ongoing sovereign debt crisis in the eurozone and its effect on the already fragile global economy led to substantially higher risk aversion. The fund's performance was helped by the fund manager's strategy of exploiting relative value opportunities in the uncertain market. In particular, having an overweight position in gilts maturing in 15 to 20 years at the start of the review period was beneficial. Their prices rose significantly due to investors' expectations that the Bank of England (BoE) would start another round of quantitative easing and therefore buy these assets.

The fund manager believes that gilt yields are likely to remain very volatile due to the BoE's £75 billion asset-purchase programme which was launched in October. During the quarter, the fund manager took profits by closing the fund's overweight in gilts maturing between 15 and 20 years. The fund's yield curve positioning is now broadly neutral relative to the benchmark. The fund manager believes that this gives him a good opportunity to rapidly take advantage of valuation discrepancies caused by the supply and demand of gilts.

What is the risk rating?

- › These risk ratings have been developed by Prudential to help provide an indication of a fund's potential level of risk and reward based on the type of assets which may be held by the fund. Other companies may use different descriptions and as such these risk ratings should not be considered as generic across the fund management industry.
- › We regularly review our fund risk ratings, so they may change in the future. If, in our view, there is a material change in the fund's level of risk, for example due to a significant change to the assets held by the fund or in the way the fund is managed, we will provide information on the new risk rating. We recommend that you make sure you understand the risk rating of any fund before you invest. You will find this information at www.pru.co.uk/factsheets
- › You should also consider discussing your decision and the appropriateness of a fund's risk rating with an adviser.
